Chase Delorette, a second grader at North Bay Elementary School in Bay St. Louis, leads the way as school opened Monday for the first time since Hurricane Katrina. The students will attend classes in temporary, modular units. Only 105, or 35% of the school's normal 304 student enrollment, attended the first day of school. In the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, first day numbers were 932 out of 2387 students, or 39% attendance. The numbers are expected to increase as more residents return to their homes.

Friday last day for Blue Roofs

The Operation Blue Roof Center at the Bay St. Louis Train Depot will close on Friday registrations will end for this free program. People who need this service must register now. Temporary roofs are still being installed. This announcement is for the ending of the application period. The 1-888-ROOF-BLU (1-888-766-3258) Call Center for FEMA's Operation Blue Roof remains active for Mississippi.

Burning ban still in effect

A burn ban is in effect for the City of Bay St. Louis until further notice. The burn ban is necessary due to the debris of Hurricane Katrina, the safety of debris removal crews, and the shortfall of rain for the months of September and October. The burn ban will remain in effect until these conditions improve, according to Robert L. Gavagnie, fire chief.

Bay-Waveland schools are now back in session

The Bay-Waveland School District opened its doors on Monday, becoming the final school district on the Coast to reopen after Hurricane Katrina closed them all on Aug. 29. On Monday evening, the Bay-Waveland School Board met. There were several items on the agenda, but the main focus of the meeting was on the reopening of all Bay-Waveland schools earlier that day.

"It was a good day today, we had a smooth start with no major problems at any of

Mississippi Army workers restore Waveland Veterans Memorial after destruction wrought by hurricane

SPECIAL FROM U. S. ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS

"We didn't want any glory from this. We just did it for the vets. If it weren't for them, we wouldn't even be here."

Tim Taylor, along with several other deployed Corps disaster recovery employees from Mississippi, voluntarily requested and received permission from Corps leadership to clean up the Waveland's Veterans Memorial, located on the city's beach.

Before the job was done, it had become an emotional joint exercise for Army civilians, guardsmen, and Army response workers, and a place of emotional perspective for an entire community obliterated by Katrina.

Hurricane Katrina overturned columns at the monument and covered it with sand and debris, and left big holes in the sand alongside the sidewalk that leads up to the structure.

The monument, built by American Legion Post 77 in Waveland, sits in a neighborhood completely decimated by the storm. What remains of the post, located a block or so behind the monument, is only a cement slab. The monument rescue team included Taylor, Chris Beardain and Joey Capwell from Mississippi's Enid Lake and Robert Upchurch, Sardis Lake.

A vet came up here when we first started, and he had tears in his eyes, said Upchurch. He didn't say anything. He didn't have to.

In one day, the Corps team cleaned off the monument, righted the columns and filled the holes with fresh sand. The following day, they cleaned the sand out of the parking lot to allow people to visit the site.

Even before the crew had finished their job, Upchurch said, more than 200 people had stopped by. They sit at the monument and stare off into the Gulf, he explained.

The good work caught on. On their own initiative, members of the 223rd Engineering Brigade, or Lt. Col. Jimmy Stringer's guys, from the Mississippi National Guard installed a makeshift, wooden flag clean up, Upchurch responded, "Just cause."

Since the monument's three flag poles were missing, the soldiers inserted the pole inside a basin used to retire American flags.

Within hours, at least 50 soldiers working in the city, from all services, had signed the pole with their rank, name and date.

Hancock shares recovery concerns

Governor's Commission on Rebuilding hears complaints about terrible traffic, FEMA delays

BY DWAYNE BREMER
Staff Writer

The Governor's Commission on Rebuilding the Coast met with Hancock County residents for the second time this month Tuesday evening in Kiln. About 100 residents filed into the Wendell Ladner Gym at Hancock North Central Elementary School.

"Our purpose is to get input from you, the members of the community, on how to best rebuild the Mississippi Gulf Coast," Chairman Chuck Benvenuti said.

The commission reported that more than 5,500 trailers have been given out in Hancock County which is about 65% of the number of applicants. There also been 6,461 right of entries given county wide for debris removal.

Several commission members were present, as well as representatives from FEMA. The commission showed a short video and then there was an open forum for questions from community members.

Many people complained that traffic in the Kiln has become nearly unbearable at times.

"It takes forty five minutes to get from the interstate to Hwy 43 in the evenings," one resident said.

The Commission reported that plans are in the works with the Mississippi Department of Transportation to allow the traffic light at the corner of Hwy 603 and Kiln-DeLisle Rd to stay green longer for the north and south bound lanes.

Residents are also concerned about FEMA building maps that are calling for all buildings that sustained over 50% damage to be raised in elevation from 13 feet, one inch to 14 feet one inch. One resident wanted to know if houses would be grandfathered in under the 13'1" map.

Residents were told that as of today there are no new building codes in Hancock County, and that any change to the current elevation maps must be voted on and changed by the county or city's first before becoming law. The county and city's would also have the right to draft a grandfather clause if they so choose.

The commission reported that discussion had taken place about moving the CSX railroad system north of Interstate 10, but it was only discussion at this time. This raised the question for one resident about the elevation level of the current railroad, which acts as a levee for many county residents.

"If the railroad goes north, are they going to tear down the tracks," she asked. The commission reported that no matter what happens to the railroad, the current elevation would remain.

Residents expressed frustration with slow response from FEMA as well as delays with building permits in certain areas of the county.

The Commission will make its final report to Governor Haley Barbour in December, and the report will be used as a tool for local leaders in the rebuilding process.

Where's the Beef?

Melvin "Cuz" and Christy Barnes stand outside the ruins of their business, Cuz's Fresh Seafood & Poboy's on Hwy. 603.

Little 'comfort' left on Gulf Coast in the wake of Hurricane Katrina

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

More than two months after Hurricane Katrina, what's left of Cuz's Fresh Seafood and Poboy's at Hwy. 603 — basically, a caved-in roof, rubble and a parking lot — is still covered in a three-inch thick layer of oily Jourdan River mud.

"You know, I was 11 when Camille hit," Christy Barnes said last week, "and I didn't think that we would ever, ever, ever go through anything like that again. I don't think even Camille was this bad."

Christy and her husband, Melvin "Cuz" Barnes, started the business last October and — aided by their five children and other family members — quickly developed it into a local hotspot that drew frequent comparisons to the world-famous Mother's in New Orleans.

On Tuesday, they surveyed the wreckage as they slipped and slid and tried to keep their balance in the mud.

Since the storm, they've been hauling debris for other people.

Cuz said, "just to survive."

Their own debris pile is going to have to wait until they hear from their insurance companies. In the meantime, they're hoping to re-open for limited business in February, just in time for crawfish season.

"We're trying to get back out here as soon as possible," Cuz said last week as he sifted through wreckage and shook his head. "It's a shame. It's just a shame."

"He said his heart hurts, doing this," Christy said. "Even though it was an old, beat-up building, we loved it. It had a lot of character."

That character was enhanced over the past year by the couple, who put every spare penny back into the building to improve it for their customers.

"Sometimes I think we screwed up because we took the money we were making and put it back into the building," Christy said. "You just want to make it a nice place for your customers."

Those customers, she said, are anxious for the business to open back up.

"We don't go anywhere that somebody's not asking us for a roast beef po-boy," Christy said. "It's those damn roast beef po-boys that got me in so much trouble. I've even had some customer ask me if I'd just give her the recipe. One guy said he didn't even care if we bring the building back, just as long as we'd make the roast beef."

"I think because it's comfort food, and right now, people need all the comfort they can get."

DMR seeks prime contractors for marine debris removal

Due to the devastating effects of Hurricane Katrina, the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) is currently accepting information from prospective prime contractors for the removal of coastal debris from Mississippi's marine waterways. The majority of this debris is located south of Interstate 10.

Contractors must have experience and equipment suitable for removal of large amounts of debris from the state waters of Mississippi, from areas below mean high tide to a depth of 15 feet. Contractors must have all applicable licenses and insurance. Prospective contractors must also provide information regarding their experience in organizing and managing lower tier subcontractors. Prospective contractors will be responsible for the removal and proper disposal of hurricane debris in a short period of time in the most environmentally responsible method practicable. The contractor will be required to properly remove and dispose of debris, some of which may contain hazardous materials, and transport all materials to DEQ or other appropriately approved disposal sites. Contractors will be required to provide all necessary equipment, fuel and manpower, including management and administrative support associated with a large debris removal effort. Contractors will be required to obtain all necessary state, federal and local permits to perform the required operations. Prospective contractors are required to provide a description of their current and past experience with any similar program or projects. Please fax the requested information to (228) 374-5005, or hand deliver to the MS Department of Marine Resources, 1141 Bayview Ave., Biloxi MS, no later than noon Thursday, Nov. 17. Call Irvin Jackson at (228) 374-5016. Include a description of your business's capabilities, proof of insurance, and a summary of current equipment available for use.

Ponderings

by James R. "Randy" Ponder
Editor and Publisher

We're in dire need of some leadership

I think there are far too many outside voices in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina trying to dictate policy, telling us where to live, what they want us to do, etc.

We need to make our own decisions and take responsibility for rebuilding our own communities.

We live here and the decisions made today will directly affect us in the future.

But everyone seems to be waiting for someone else to tell them what to do, how to do it, when and where. No one seems to be in control or in charge. It is almost impossible to get answers to even simple questions. Ask three different representatives from the same agency and you will probably get three different answers.

What we desperately need right now is a local leader. Someone who will step out of their comfort zone, step up to the plate, and get answers, find out just exactly what is happening. A leader with a "Darn the torpedoes and full speed ahead," just get it done attitude.

Don't get me wrong, we have many hard-working, dedicated city and county officials. Unfortunately, we also have those who show up for photo opportunities, smile for the cameras and then quickly fade out of the picture. We need leaders, not politicians.

Hopefully, come election time, voters will remember those elected officials who basically sat on their hands while our beloved communities rotted away in the debris of Katrina, much like Nero fiddling while Rome burned.

We cannot possible rebuild without the help of outside agencies. We need them and must have their full cooperation. But we still need to maintain some control.

What we need right now in Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland is leadership.

Honor our fallen heroes

Hancock County is saddened by the death of 1st Lt. Robert Oneto-Sikorski a member of 155th brigade combat team this past Monday in Iraq.

1st Lt. Oneto-Sikorski was a graduate of Hancock High School and the University of Alabama.

Telling children ages 6, 8 and 11 their father will not be coming home to hold them, talk to them, kiss them, etc. has to be one of the hardest things in the world.

Our heart goes out to the three youngsters, family members, comrades, and friends.

1st Lt. Oneto-Sikorski gave his life for his country. What greater act can someone give? None really.

We all need to "stand tall" and honor our fallen heroes and their loved ones left behind.

It seems FEMA is still taking the heat on travel trailer woes.

Travel trailers for sure are not supposed to replace the comforts of home.

But delivery of FEMA trailers sure has seemed to drag on. Also there are many folks finding flaws and coming up with some problem with the temporary quarters.

By now it seems that everyone who applied for a trailer should receive one.

I really feel for anyone who had to sleep in a tent, especially with last week's cold temperatures.

Hopefully all approved applicants will receive their FEMA trailer very soon and those with problems will be corrected.

One will not see oysters in this area as the season has been closed due to Hurricane Katrina.

Oysters are a "big buck" industry for many local fishermen and related businesses.

Hopefully, it will not take too long for oysters to recover.

Mississippi's Department of Marine Resources will be doing everything it can to help our local fishermen.

Oysters have been spread all over the Mississippi Sound and many are buried in mud.

A good oyster po-boy would taste good right now.

Help is arriving in many ways for Hancock County following Katrina.

Even our court system is being helped with equipment and furniture from San Diego through the efforts of Supreme Court Judge William Pate.

It is hoped our people of Hancock County can continue to receive help from across the nation.

Katrina had to be the greatest natural disaster to strike our nation.

If ever we needed help, it is now.

CONGRESS GETS THE "BIRD FLU"

Meredith should be honored, too

Build a statue of James Meredith on the campus at Ole Miss? Not a good idea. I will discuss the whys below and propose some other tribute.

Remarkably coincidental, the same week the Meredith statue flap popped into the news, the nation was mourning the death of Rosa Parks, the little black lady whose quiet refusal in 1955 to sit in the back of a Montgomery, AL bus spawned the civil rights movement.

Flags outside federal buildings nationwide were flown at half mast in Rosa Parks' memory, and her 92-year-old body lay in state in the nation's

by Bill Minor

Capitol, the first woman to be accorded that citizenship.

But as former President Bill Clinton said at Mrs. Parks' funeral, her simple act of defiance that led to the end of a system of racial oppression liberated not only black citizens, but white citizens as well.

True, honors paid by some high officials in our nation to a bespectacled little Alabama seamstress may have been acts of contrition for collective guilt of white leaders who for many years had failed to end American apartheid, and relegated blacks to second-class racial segregation pales in comparison to James Meredith in cracking Mississippi's higher education color barrier at Ole Miss seems to me illogical.

Rosa Parks rightfully became a national symbol when she acted alone by fearlessly refusing to give up her bus seat to a white man at the end of her workday and was arrested. Her quiet courage is immeasurable.

No doubt, Meredith's determination to become the first known African-American to enroll at Mississippi's most prestigious all-white university.

Rebuilding the Coast takes creative thinking

TO: Members of Hancock County Committee on Recovery, Rebuilding & Renewal

Thank you for serving on this important group. We were impressed with the suggestions that you passed out at the meeting last week.

In our opinion, we need not only to restore our homes and businesses back to normal, but also we need to try to make our area as appealing as possible to potential new residents.

Accordingly, will you consider these thoughts:

1) Reactivate plan for additions to Kiln Water and Sewer District (original approved plans are still available for review).

2) Establish a ferry to Henderson Point.

3) Replenish the sand beach continuously from Bay View Court to Bayou Caddy.

4) Widening Beach

Guest Opinion
by Leo Seal Jr.

Blvd. from Bay Bridge to Bayou Caddy including provisions for parking adjoining the roadway.

5) Redredging Bay-Waveland Yacht Club Harbor (with no public money nor cost, as Yacht Club will pay for this).

See below for logic or basis for these:

1) Kiln Water & Sewer District. A severe health hazard increases daily as hundreds of swimmers, boaters and fishermen access Jourdan River, Rotten Bayou, etc., throughout the year. The Jourdan River Shores Sewage Treatment Plant was built for 40 homes, and there are now 300 homes in the area, and the septic tanks, etc. pollute the water continuously. Last year's planned addition – in spite of Federal grants – failed because monthly fees to pay for Bond Issue were too high for residents to pay initially while new houses signed on.

2) Ferry Across the Bay. It's 30-35 miles to Henderson Point and/or Gulfport today. A ferry operated from DeMontLuzin Avenue to foot of L&N Railroad Bridge prior to building the Bay Bridge in 1927. Following the 1947 hurricane, a ferry was operated on same route while breaking Mississippi's higher education color line, Meredith's erratic life history--of helping known white racists such as Louisiana Klansman David Duke and ex-Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and opposing some leading black politicians--has sullied his standing as a hero of Mississippi blacks.

I've gotten to know Meredith about as well as anyone other than his immediate family and I've heard him utter many incredible remarks, ranging from him once saying he was related to Ross Barnett to recently that I had made "the most influence" on his life.

His rationale for the latter one was that over the years I'd sent journalists and writers to see him with the warning they'd find him "crazy." Obviously, he dotes on casting that image.

In October, 2002 I was one of dozens of people invited to the Ole Miss bridge was being repaired. Highway Department estimates rebuilding Bay Bridge will take two (2) years.

3) Our sand beaches are major attractions for residents and visitors of Hancock County. Currently, the DMR (Department of Marine Resources) has arbitrarily declared areas at foot of Bay View Court, State Street (behind Dock of the Bay), "the Jungle" north of Legion Pier at Washington Street, and some areas in Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore areas to be marshland and prohibit beaches being put there.

I have lived in Bay St. Louis for 80 years, and these areas were never natural marshland. DMR needs to lift these restrictions so beach is continuous from Bay View Court to Bayou Caddy.

4) The increased traffic on Beach Drive will be a certainty as rebuilding commences, especially if the planned condos and casinos in Lakeshore, Clermont Harbor, Waveland and Bay come to pass. Therefore, not only does entire Beach Drive from Bay Bridge to Bayou Caddy need to be widened, but adjoining parking areas also need to be a part of the widening.

5) Dredging Bay-Waveland Yacht Club Harbor. Local realtors can document the Yacht Club importance in their efforts to "sell" prospective residents to locate in Hancock County. The Club and Harbor were built in 1949, and paid for with no public funds.

A 10-foot deep harbor was created by establishing a peninsula on the north side with the spoil. Up until recent years the Harbor and its mouth were maintained by placing fill on the peninsula. Now the DMR claims it to be part wetland, and they and Corps of Engineers will not permit same procedure. The Harbor now is less than 6 feet deep and entrance less than 3 feet. The DMR and engineers need to allow the Yacht Club at its own expense to dredge the harbor and mouth to its original 10-foot depth and allow spoil to be placed on the peninsula. Such will provide more parking area for boat owners as well as providing access for sail and motor vessels to the Harbor.

Each of these ideas very definitely will be positive factors in making the County more attractive to present as well as prospective residents; hence, we respectfully request that you give this your serious consideration.

Thanks.

Sincerely yours,
Leo W. Seal, Jr.

against great odds, required considerable guts, even fearlessness.

But it must also be remembered that Meredith had a formidable support group in doing what he did. To name a few: attorney Constance Baker Motley, the Justice Departments' legendary John Doar and a cast of thousands including federal marshals and the United States Army.

As even some national black figures said when it was first known 45 years ago Meredith had applied for enrollment at Ole Miss, any black man from Mississippi who seriously thought he could be registered and graduate from the school that linked its heritage to the old confederacy, had to be somewhat, if not a lot, crazy.

When I first met and sat down to talk with Meredith in early 1961--the first newsman to do so--and asked him his reasons for seeking admission to Ole Miss and how he thought Mississippi officials (students and white citizenry alike) would react if he seriously pursued entry into the all-white university, did nothing to dispel the notion that this guy had a screw loose. He dismissed any suggestion of mine that he would encounter massive resistance from Gov. Ross Barnett and would likely set off a violent uproar.

Even I back then couldn't conceive that less than two years later his enrollment would trigger a virtual mini-civil war on the tree-lined university campus. In a night of bloody rioting by hundreds of students and non-students, two persons died, more than 60 U.S. marshals were wounded, and thousands of soldiers with fixed bayonets were needed to restore order.

Over the four decades since he made history by campus for a three-day ceremony marking the 40th anniversary of his enrollment as the first black student at the 152-year-old institution.

I caught up with him eating barbecue at a dinner in the Grove--remembered as the scene of the most violent rioting on the campus during the long, bloody night of Sept. 30-Oct. 1, 1962--and I'd never seen him happier. Surrounded by adoring minions, he whispered to me: "pretty good turnout for a crazy man, wouldn't you say?"

Honoring Meredith in ceremonies periodically while he is still alive, I believe would be a better tribute to him rather than a statue, keeping in mind the bad rap statues have gotten because of the inglorious one of racial demagogue Theodore Bilbo that stood for years in the rotunda of the state Capitol. I shall never forget dozens of battered U.S. marshals swathed in bandages along the floor of the Lyceum's corridors the long night in 1962, having risked their lives to install one black man in the state's pristinely white university.

A more fitting permanent memento, I believe, would be to prominently

"We were hoping for the numbers to be a little higher, but hopefully they will pick up by the end of the week," board member David Mayley said.

The board was greeted by Terrena Gandy, Susannah Waveland of Save The Children Foundation, and a plan for crisis counseling was discussed for the district.

The program calls for a series of stages that help children from ages four to fourteen deal with traumatic events.

Mayley questioned whether the program would cut into class time. Board President Sherry Ponder defended the use of the program by saying "It's kind of like what comes first the chicken or the egg." The board then voted 4-0 to approve the program as a partial implementation of the program with a report and follow up scheduled for the Nov 21st meeting.

In other business the board reported that free lunches for all children would be allowed until the end of November, and that the board was going to attempt to see if this could be extended until Christmas.

Finally the board voted to approve the resignations of two employees, one teacher that moved to Texas and a kitchen worker.

Members present were President Sherry Ponder, David Mayley, Beth Keith, and Cheryl Ladd.

including her C-Pac oxygen machine. Hardegen, who suffers from sleep apnea, needed the machine in order to sleep through the night.

"In one hour's time during the test (when I was diagnosed)," Hardegen said, "I woke up 45 times."

When she stopped one day last month with a friend at the Christian Life tent at Kmart parking lot in Waveland, she met Sandy Griffin, a volunteer from Willow Creek Community Church in South Barrington, Ill.

Griffin said she had been greeting people at the entrance to the tent that day, and Hardegen "was the only one I asked 'what do you need?' and she said 'An oxygen machine,' and I just happened to have one. What are the odds?"

Shortly before Griffin traveled to the Coast from Illinois, a friend of her's had told her he had a C-Pac machine that his mother had been using before she died and said she should offer it to someone who needed it in the hurricane area.

So Griffin went back to Chicago, got the $2,300 machine, and made the 20-hour bus trip back to give it to Hardegen.

"It's really nice of the Christian Life people to come down here and do all this," Hardegen said. "It's amazing, really."

The Christian Life Church relief efforts include Christian Life Church of Orange Beach, Al., Heartland

Community Church of Rockford, Ill. and the Willow Creek Community Church of South Barrington, near Chicago.

The group is also planning Christmas on the Coast on Dec. 18 in Waveland. The church is seeking donations to help provide Christmas presents, toys and other necessary items for the Coast's children. To

Mississippi businesses awarded more than $235 million in disaster-related contracts

SEA COAST ECHO

Federal agencies are continuing their commitment to contracting with Mississippi businesses, particularly small and minority business owners, for products and services needed during the Hurricane Katrina recovery.

"We are committed to doing business with Mississippi firms, especially those registered with the Mississippi Contract Procurement Center," said Nick Russo, deputy federal coordinating officer for the disaster recovery.

"Katrina affords a unique opportunity for small and minority business owners to demonstrate their tremendous capacity to help revitalize Mississippi. The Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is dedicated to helping the state with its comprehensive recovery, and we are counting on small and minority businesses to work side by side with us in the years ahead."

Since Katrina devastated Mississippi homes, businesses, utilities, infrastructure and woodlands, the federal government has committed more than $235 million to Mississippi businesses for disaster-related work.

• At the direction of FEMA, the General Services Administration (GSA), through a partnership with the Mississippi Contract Procurement Center, is contracting with Mississippi businesses.

o GSA bought $55 million worth of travel trailers from Mississippi small businesses for FEMA's temporary housing program.

o GSA awarded 46 contracts worth $42.8 million to small businesses in Mississippi for various disaster support efforts.

• Before Katrina made landfall, at the direction of FEMA, GSA awarded Mississippi companies:

o 58 contracts to 21

small businesses for $81,677,821;

o 34 contracts to 12 large businesses for $26,476,495.

• The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, in support of FEMA, on September 16 awarded a competitive bid fixed-price contract to AshBritt, Inc. for up to $500 million for debris removal in Mississippi, in accordance with the Stafford Act. AshBritt is to give preference to organizations, firms or individuals residing or doing business primarily in the area affected by Hurricane Katrina.

o The contractor must make good faith efforts to include small businesses, service-disabled veterans, small HUB-Zone (Historically Underutilized Business) concerns, small disadvantaged businesses, and woman-owned small businesses in its subcontracts.

o Of the money paid to subcontractors to date, 61 percent has gone to Mississippi firms. A further breakout shows 60 percent of total payments have gone to small businesses, 30 percent to HUB (Historically Underutilized Business) zone firms, and 14 percent to small disadvantaged businesses.

• The U.S. Small Business Administration Disaster Assistance Program has approved 1,969 loan applications totaling more than $141.7 million to date for homeowners, renters, and business owners.

"It is vitally important that we continue our joint efforts to get recovery under way," said Robert Latham, executive director of the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency. "Mississippi businesses and jobs are part of the key to making this process successful."

o The contractor must make good faith efforts to include small businesses, service-disabled veterans, small HUB-Zone (Historically Underutilized Business) concerns, small disadvantaged businesses, and woman-owned small businesses in its subcontracts.

Post Hurricane Katrina- renovations are under way at the Hancock County Youth Court building on Court St. in Bay St. Louis.

Hancock County Youth Court set to re-open for business Dec. 1st

BY DWAYNE BREMER
Staff Writer

The Hancock County Youth Court was spared total destruction by Hurricane Katrina, and now the court and its staff are hopeful to be back in operation by Dec. 1st. This would make the court the first county office south of the interstate to be operational in its own office since the storm.

"The building only took about eight to ten inches of water, and we had no major roof damage. Since the storm all of the staff has been working hard to get things back in order," court administrator Chere Hayward said.

The youth court building is located at the back of court street, and it escaped more serious damage because the Hancock County Jail acted as a buffer between the court and the storm surge.

The court has received plenty of help from the county as well as outside sources in the cleanup effort. The Air National Guard from Battle Creek, Michigan assisted the court after the storm. "Col. Vollenerhausen's unit helped us by tearing out sheet rock, floors and cleaning the building, we are very thankful to all of them," Hayward stated. The cleaning was finished by the American Catastrophe Corporation as well as court staff and county workers.

The court has received assistance from the Department of Homeland Security as well as the Department of Justice. This was arranged by Judge Robin Gryder Gibson and Mike Jones of the Mississippi Supreme Court. These departments have donated items such as computers, desks, file cabinets and fax machines.

"We have gotten a lot of help but I would like to especially thank Tim Kellar, Lisa Coward and the rest of the Board of Supervisors for their support. I am so proud of Chere Hayward and the staff they have done a great job getting the court up and running," Judge Gibson stated.

Prior to the storm the County had six juvenile's housed at the Forrest County Juvenile Center. All six were released shortly after the storm, and their cases were reset. As for the juvenile's that were already sentenced to training school, the juvenile's served all of their time before being released.

The court currently only has three juvenile's in custody. Hearing have been held at the temporary justice court building in Kiln.

The youth court is also set to be used as a temporary home for the Bay St Louis City Court, since the status of the justice court building on Hwy 90 is still uncertain.

As for the long term Gibson hopes that the County can expand on the current youth system.

"I hope that in the future our services can provide a full time mentoring program, as well as a juvenile facility in Hancock County. We also hope to have more community involvement," Gibson stated.

The court still has several cases that are pending. The court asks anyone that has moved or has not contacted the court to send notice by mail to 126 Court St Bay St. Louis MS 39520.

Veterans Day program

The Veterans of Bay St. Louis and Waveland will join together for a program on Veterans Day November 11.

A Flag Raising will be held at the Hancock County Walking Track at 9 a.m. with the inside program at 5 p.m. Food will be served after the program by the American Legion Post 139 at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3253, 208 Third Street, Bay St. Louis.

The V.F.W. post is opened from 1 to 8 p.m. every day for the benefit of all veteran organizations. At this time American Legion Post 139 staff operates the V.F.W. Post 3253 Club House during those hours.

Debris removal is a group effort

SEA COAST ECHO

The most commonly used method of acquiring assistance for debris removal is through the FEMA Public Assistance program. FEMA can either reimburse local governments for the cost of debris removal or the local government can request direct federal assistance from FEMA, which then tasks the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to complete the debris removal process.

There are various departments and programs within the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), which provide assistance with the removal of debris from land or waterways generally used for agricultural purposes.

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) removes imminent hazards to life and property created by a natural disaster, including removing debris in streams and debris effecting watersheds. The NRCS works with private property owners and local governments who qualify for the program to clear the waterways.

Another resource for owners of agricultural land is the USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA), which provides emergency loans to help farmers in the recovery of losses due to the hurricane, including debris removal.

The USDA's Forest Service clears right of ways on federal government owned forestlands. The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (MDMR) administers the State's Derelict Vessel program aimed at removing sunken and stranded vessels that may pose a hazard to navigation or public health. The department, with assistance from its federal partners will focus on identifying and removing such vessels sunken or stranded by Hurricane Katrina in the next several months.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Coast Guard (USCG) are responsible for coordinating and overseeing the proper collection and disposal of hazardous wastes as a result of the storm. USCG oversees cleanup of hazardous waste in U.S. waterways.

If private property owners find hazardous debris on their property, it should be separated from other debris and disposed of at the established neighborhood collection points for hazardous waste. EPA, Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality, and county governments are establishing household hazardous waste collection days for neighborhoods along the Mississippi coast. Unknown hazardous debris, such as an unidentifiable drum, should be reported to the local government or the National Response Center (1-800-424-8802) and EPA will respond by identifying the debris and coordinating removal.

FEMA removes only debris which was caused by the hurricane and causes a threat to human health and public safety. Generally, all debris that is on government right of ways including public roads and parks is removed. Debris is also removed from waterways which are government right of ways such as bridges and government owned boat landings.

Because of the scope of this disaster, debris may also be removed from private residential and commercial property if it is identified by state and local governments as a threat to public health and safety. Common public health threats are debris with bio-hazards or debris that will allow fires to spread between buildings. Common safety threats are trees and hanging limbs creating a dangerous situation when entering and exiting a property. Private residential and commercial property owners can also clear debris from their land and place it curbside to be picked up for proper disposal.

If you have questions about debris removal, FEMA has assigned a debris specialist to each county to work with state and local officials. Contact your state and local government and they can get you in touch with a debris specialist, who can provide technical assistance on debris issues.

Tigers take to the road for playoffs; Jochum & Adam earn top offense/defense honors

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

The Bay High Tigers (4-3, 3-2) ended the 2005 regular season with a 33-20 loss to the visiting Pearl River Central Blue Devils. The loss dropped the Tigers to third place and forced a road game for Bay High in the first round of the state playoffs.

The Hancock Hawks also dropped their regular season home finale to the Biloxi Indians 49-14 in Kiln on Friday night. The Pass Christian Pirates became the latest victim for the Division 8-4A champion Long Beach Bearcats on Friday. The Pirates lost to the Bearcats 35-6 as Long Beach secured a first-round state playoff game at home and won their first-ever division football title.

The Tigers held a narrow 6-0 lead with :29 seconds left in the first half thanks to the leg of Kyle Moran who nailed field goals of 36 and 34 yards.

However, PRC struck with just :06 left on the clock as Jared Mixon hooked up with PJ Nixon on a 60-yard strike. The score was tied at intermission 6-6.

The Blue Devils

ripped off three scores during the third quarter and the first part of the fourth quarter to make the score 26-6 before the Tigers could light up the scoreboard again.

Bay High struck paydirt with 8:10 remaining in the game when Moran scored from five yards and added his own PAT. Tyler Brush threw a three-yard scoring pass to Chaquille Lewis with 3:29 left to play to make the score 33-20.

The Tigers were led on the ground by Tony Connelli with 89 yards on 18 carries followed by yards on 14 carries. Brush also threw for 105 yards on the night.

Defensively, Trevor Adam recorded his third game of the season with 17 total tackles, including seven solo stops. Kyle Moran added 8 total tackles followed by Teddy Morris and Cory Thornton with seven total tackles each.

The Bay High Tigers will take a trip to Mendenhall on Friday in the first round of the state playoffs. Game time is set for 7pm.

The Hancock Hawks ended their home schedule in 2005 with a 49-14 loss to the Biloxi Indians. Biloxi built up a 35-0 cushion at halftime but the Hawks didn't quit and came out in the second half and put two scores on the board.

Chris Jochum scored on runs of one and nine yards. He also ended the night with 88 yards on 11 carries. Andrew Smith added 98 yards on 14 carries for the Hawks.

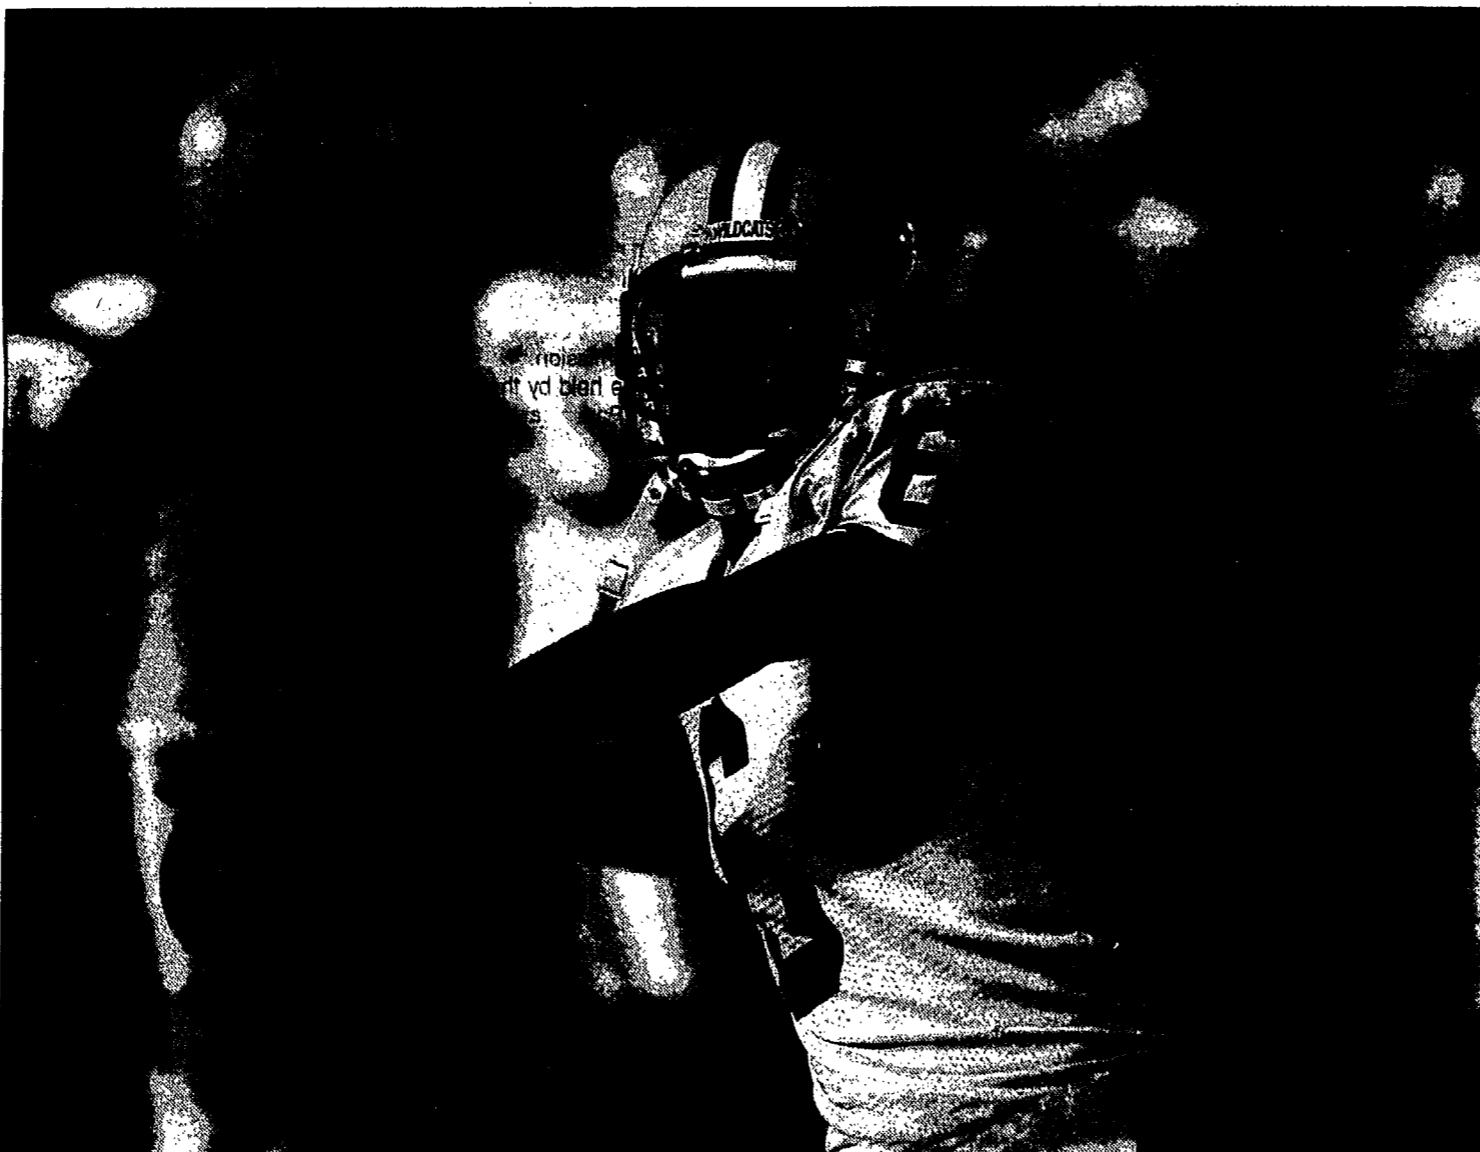

Hancock will end the 2005 season on the road against Harrison Central in Lyman on Friday night.

The Pirates of Pass Christian ended their season on Friday night with a 35-6 loss to the Long Beach Bearcats. The win ended a tremendous season for the Bearcats who captured their first ever football division title since the state went to the current format in 1982.

The Offensive Player of the Week for Week Eight is Hancock's Chris Jochum who scored twice and rushed for 88 yards on 11 carries in the loss to Biloxi.

The Defensive Player of the Week for Week Eight is Bay High's Trevor Adam who tallied 17 total tackles, including seven solo stops, in the 33-20 loss to PRC.

Pearl River All-American quarterback Jimmy Oliver will lead the nation's No. 1 offense against the undefeated and second-ranked Northeast Mississippi Tigers in the first round of the MACJC football playoffs Saturday in Booneville. Oliver, who prepped at East Marion, was 2004's NJCAA and Region 23 "Offensive Player of the Year." The redshirt sophomore was instrumental in the Wildcats winning national and state championships last season.

Pearl River eyes Northeast in first round of MACJC playoffs

SEA COAST ECHO

Pearl River Community College begins its official quest for a "three-peat" as state football champions Saturday when it travels to Booneville to lock horns with undefeated and second-ranked Northeast Mississippi in the first round of the MACJC playoffs.

A 2 p.m. kickoff is set in Keenum Stadium.

Fifth-ranked PRCC, the No. 2 seed from the South Division, puts its 6-1 mark on the line against the Coach Andy Greening's Tigers, the North Division champions who finished its 2005 regular season campaign last week with a hard-fought 30-14 win over division rival Coahoma to wrap its regular season at 7-0 overall and 6-0 in league play.

South Division champ Mississippi Gulf Coast (6-1), which moved up to ninth from 10th in this week's NJCAA poll, will host North runner up Itawamba (6-1) at 2 p.m. Saturday in Perkinston. The first-round winners will do battle Saturday, Nov. 19, for the state championship. ICC didn't break into the NJCAA's Top 20 poll, but received votes in the latest balloting.

Fourth-year PRCC head coach Tim Hatten says "expect a good game."

"There's going to be two very good football teams fighting to continue their seasons out there Saturday," said Hatten. "Coach Greening has got his team playing with a lot of confidence and they're very good at what they do."

"We'll just see what happens. I feel like we're playing our best football right now...particularly on the offensive side. We're peaking at the right time and I feel very good about our chances going in."

The Wildcats enter the game off a dominating 45-3 win over Copiah-Lincoln last week in Poplarville. PRCC finished the regular season as the top-scoring offense in the MACJC with 294 points compared to NECC's third-best 239, while defensively the Wildcats rendered a third-best 129 points in its seven games. Northeast gave up a league-best 65 points and Itawamba a second-best 85.

The Pearl River-Northeast Mississippi rivalry dates back to 1950 when the Tigers took a 20-7 victory in only their second season of football. The Wildcats answered with five straight wins — the last four being shutouts — before NECC discontinued its football program in 1955. Tiger football saw a rebirth in 1970. The Tigers' 13-6 win last season cut the Wildcats' lead in the series to 25-4. Prior to 2002's Tiger victory, the first game Wildcat mentor Hatten coached at PRCC.

Meyers closed out her career at MSU with 222 saves which ranks second all-time for the Lady Bulldogs.

Meyers sets single season save record at MSU

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

Emily Meyers, daughter of Mike and Gwen Meyers of Bay St. Louis and a 2002 graduate of OLA, recently set the single-season save record at Mississippi State University.

The 5-9 three-year letter winner in Lady Bulldogs soccer ended 2005 with 135 saves in 19 starts in the net which eclipsed the previous record of 130 set in 1999.

Meyers set the season record against arch-rival Ole Miss who was ranked 23rd in the country at the time. The game against the Lady Rebels ended in a 1-1 tie with Meyers making five saves.

Meyers comes from an athletic pedigree as her father, Mike, is a former gridiron star for the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws and Louisiana Tech University.

Perhaps the most intriguing aspect of Meyers' record-setting career is the fact that she was an offensive scorer turned defensive stopper as a junior in college.

Meyers made the switch to the net from midfielder following the tragic death of her roommate and starting goalkeeper Courtney Hubert in an automobile accident in the spring of 2003.

Meyers closed out her career at MSU with 222 saves which ranks second all-time for the Lady Bulldogs.

While at OLA, Meyers was a three-sport letter winner in soccer, volleyball and softball and was the first recipient of the Hull Award given to OLA's best all-around athlete.

At the all-girls Catholic school, Meyers started every soccer game from her seventh grade year forward and led the Crescents to three consecutive state soccer titles between 2000-02.

She scored 109 goals in her high school career and played in the 2002 Mississippi All Star soccer game.

In volleyball, she led OLA to the state title game against Tupelo in 2001 and was named to the All-State team. On the diamond, Meyers turned OLA from pretender to contender with her play.

She lined up at pitcher, shortstop and third base for the Crescents and had a career batting average of .450 with 10 home runs. She led OLA to their first-ever softball division title in 2002.

Healthy Lifestyles spotlighted at Cochran ceremony

SEA COAST ECHO

More than a hundred students, administrators, teachers and nurses from Pearl River County's three school districts were in attendance at the Forum on American Enterprise Honoring U.S. Senator Thad Cochran to represent the innovative program, Healthy Lifestyles. Gov. Haley Barbour was one of the distinguished speakers, as well as a taped message from Senator Cochran at the event which was sponsored by the Mississippi Council on Economic Education (MCEE).

"Healthy Lifestyles is great for the kids in Pearl River County. We want all 500,000 K-12 students in Mississippi involved with this very soon," said Barbour. "The economic impact on our state will be breathtaking."

Healthy Lifestyles is a model program to fight childhood obesity in Pearl River County through education, screening, and prevention.

It was made possible by grants from Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi Foundation, the Lower Pearl River Valley Foundation, and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundations that amounted to over a million dollars along with funding from the school districts. They were able to achieve their goal by working together and coming up with the conceptual curriculum.

The governor also took the opportunity with the 600 plus audience to express his hope for the future of rebuilding the coast. "Our people are focused on the future." He stated that in a recent gallop poll, 40% of Louisiana residents said they would no go back to their homes. After inquiries, Barbour was told that the gallop poll revealed that 95% of Mississippi residents had already returned or intended to return, a major difference in the neighboring states.

Barbour stated he even he was amazed that all schools were opened by the end of October, with 90% of students back in the district where they had been before Hurricane Katrina.

"There shouldn't be any question about Mississippians loving their community," said the governor. We owe it to them (Coast) to do it right, to make it bigger, better than before."

The keynote speaker for the event was Dr. Bob Arnot, one of the most recognized names in the medical field, as well as renowned journalist and bestselling author. He is known for spending much of his time in the most dangerous parts of the world as a special foreign correspondent for MSNBC. His books cover healthcare topics ranging from sports medicine to breast cancer prevention.

all across the state. "Many do not realize how close economic and health issues are related," said Gov. Barbour. "For instance, Diabetes is an outrageously expensive disease. If we don't do something, instead of our 50 to 60 year olds having onset of type two Diabetes, our 30 year olds are."

The Forum ended as staff member for Sen. Cochran, Kim Coalter sang God Bless America.
